Amandeep Ahuja's The Frustrated Women Club is a witty and insightful look at the challenges facing women in modern India. The novel follows the stories of four women who are all struggling with different aspects of their lives, from marriage and motherhood to career and identity.

The protagonist of the novel is Meera, a young woman who is married to a man who is constantly belittling her. Meera is frustrated by her husband's behavior, but she is also afraid to leave him because she is financially dependent on him. Another character in the novel is Ritu, a successful career woman who is struggling to balance her work and personal life. Ritu is constantly feeling like she is not doing enough, both at work and at home. The third character in the novel is Sarika, a stay-at-home mom who is struggling with the isolation and loneliness of her life. Sarika feels like she has lost her sense of self since becoming a mother.

The fourth character in the novel is Naina, a young woman who is trying to find her place in the world. Naina is struggling with her identity and her sexuality. She is not sure who she is or what she wants out of life. The novel follows the stories of these four women as they navigate the challenges of modern India. Ahuja's writing is sharp and funny, and she does not shy away from tackling difficult topics such as sexism, domestic violence, and sexual harassment.

The Frustrated Women Club is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the lives of women in India today. Ahuja's novel is a powerful and moving portrait of the challenges facing women in India, and it is a must-read for anyone who wants to understand the lives of women in India today.
