

What If It's Not About Who You Marry, But Why You Marry?

The Sacred Search: What if It's Not about Who You Marry, but Why? by Gary Thomas

★★★★☆ 4.8 out of 5

Language	: English
File size	: 1816 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
X-Ray	: Enabled
Word Wise	: Enabled
Print length	: 226 pages
Screen Reader	: Supported

Many people believe that finding the right person to marry is the key to a happy and fulfilling marriage. However, what if it's not about who you marry, but why you marry?

When you're looking for a partner, it's easy to get caught up in the physical attraction, the chemistry, and the excitement of the chase. But it's important to remember that these things are only a small part of what makes a marriage successful.

The real foundation of a good marriage is built on shared values, goals, and beliefs. It's about finding someone who you can connect with on a deep level, someone who you can grow with and who will support you through life's challenges.

If you're not sure why you want to get married, it's important to take some time to reflect on your own values and goals. What are you looking for in a partner? What do you want out of life? Once you know what you're looking for, you can start to narrow down your search.

It's also important to be honest with yourself about your reasons for wanting to get married. Are you looking for someone to complete you? Are you looking for someone to make you happy? If so, you're setting yourself up for disappointment.

No one can make you happy. Only you can make yourself happy. And no one can complete you. You are already a complete person. Marriage is about finding someone to share your life with, not someone to complete you.

If you're looking for a partner who will make you happy, you're better off looking for someone who shares your values, goals, and beliefs. Someone who you can connect with on a deep level and who will support you through life's challenges.

So, if you're wondering whether or not it's about who you marry, the answer is: it's both. It's about finding someone who you love and who loves you back. But it's also about finding someone who you can build a strong and lasting relationship with.

Here are a few questions to ask yourself when you're thinking about getting married:

- Why do I want to get married?
- What am I looking for in a partner?

- What are my values, goals, and beliefs?
- Do I want someone who will complete me or someone who will support me?

If you can answer these questions honestly, you'll be well on your way to finding a partner who is right for you.

The Sacred Search: What if It's Not about Who You Marry, but Why? by Gary Thomas

★★★★☆ 4.8 out of 5

Language : English
 File size : 1816 KB
 Text-to-Speech : Enabled
 Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
 X-Ray : Enabled
 Word Wise : Enabled
 Print length : 226 pages
 Screen Reader : Supported

Dk Workbooks Science Third Grade: An In-Depth Exploration of Learning and Discovery

Science education plays a pivotal role in shaping young minds, fostering curiosity, critical thinking skills, and a lifelong appreciation for the natural...

Ex Parte Milligan Reconsidered: A Long Tail Analysis

Ex Parte Milligan was a landmark Supreme Court case that ruled that military tribunals could not try civilians in areas where the civil courts...